Renee Beth Poindexter

will Activate the Potential in Your Audience!

Renee Beth Poindexter is the founder of Living The Potential Network, a collaborative of change-makers (entrepreneurial parents, growth-minded teachers, conscious business executives, and experts from every domain) who engage the wisdom of the youth to solve the very serious problems our world is facing.

An accomplished trainer, facilitator, success coach, and organizational consultant, Renee Beth discovered the significance of learning in the world of business over twenty-five years—across many sectors, including technology, healthcare, financial services, construction, advertising, public relations, executive search, coaching, and consulting. A former high school English teacher, Renee Beth has worked with non-profit organizations, schools, and businesses to facilitate the positive changes needed to fulfill their organizational vision. Her background in continuous improvement has assisted her in designing programs that inspire people to lead with their heads and hearts connected and create better results.

Renee Beth's current work through Living The Potential Network includes coaching, consulting, and mentoring change-makers who are courageously choosing to own their purpose and design their legacy with one common goal: Leave the world better than they found it.

Her book, Living The Potential: Engaging the Wisdom of Our Youth to Save the World, invites people who are vested in a positive future to open new pathways for collaboration—where everyone can bring more of who we are to what we do and how we do it, and engage the wisdom of our youth as active participants in co-creating a happier, healthier future for all.

Renee Beth is a frequent guest host for Pathways, a radio show for personal and cultural transformation streamed globally on KBOO-FM. She is Chair of Transformative Learning Foundation (formerly the SelfDesign Foundation) in the United States, and has served as an Advisory Board member with Univera, Inc., and currently with Village Home Education Resource Center and the Salmonberry School. A global traveler, Renee Beth makes her home in Portland, Oregon, with her husband, Mark Roth. She loves people, nature, and adventure, and is a master networker.

Living The Potential

With a world that seems to be teetering on disaster, and our children's future in jeopardy, it's time for a paradigm change. Renee Beth will inspire you to engage the wisdom of our young people to save the world, and equip you with a simple and powerful approach to do it.

Trusting Your Seeds of Change

You want to leave the world better than you found it, but you don't know where or how to start. Renee Beth will show you how to uncover your true potential and nurture those seeds into full-grown, self-sustaining opportunities to make a difference in a way that only you can.

Cultivating Fertile Learning Environments

It's obvious that the industrial model of education is not preparing our children for their futures. But all is not lost. New paths of learning are emerging. Renee Beth will share powerful models of learning environments that catalyze curiosity, collaboration, and creativity—and give you ways to cultivate your own or contribute to one near you.

Cross-Pollinating Education and Business

Businesses are baffled by the lack of skill the next generation is exhibiting in the workplace, and young people are struggling to find a career that inspires them to work hard. What will it take to bridge this gap? Renee Beth will wow you with her simple approach of developing relationships between the domains to solve real-world problems and prepare youth for the real world.
